

K5 is the leading growth and strategy conference for online retail in the DACH region. Since 2005 we are covering and analyzing the major trends and developments in the global online retail sector on our industry blogs www.ExcitingCommerce.de and www.EarlyMoves.com. With the launch of the first public investment fund - the GLORE Global Online Retail Fund - the K5 research activities have entered the next phase. To provide even more in-depth analysis on companies - public and non-public - and markets we are searching for a

Junior Industry Analyst (m/f)

YOUR TASKS

- Autonomously you are researching, selecting and analyzing data and KPI both for ecommerce companies as well as the ecommerce sector in general
- Based on clear assumptions you are deriving robust conclusions on the companies strategic and financial performance
- Framing your findings in sharpened logical reasoning so that these can be published in our regular GLORE reports and blog posts
- Supporting our team to visualize your data based results in a user-friendly manner

YOUR PROFILE

- A university degree and a first track record in publishing or blogging
- Your excellent analytical and numerical skills are only rivaled by your thirst for learning and your curiosity for business modelling
- As a very articulate person you enjoy writing in English and shaping a soundly researched position into a text
- You are a driven, proactive self-starter who enjoys a fast-paced environment with established guidelines and values
- As an open-minded team player your work focus lies on speed, quality and integrity

OUR OFFER

- An exciting and fast-paced work environment within a small team of inspiring and passionate people
- Take part in the most thrilling ride and shape with us the retail of the future
- Great work scope with freedom and autonomy to create your own job
- Your location can either be Berlin or Munich

Intrigued by our offer? Then let's get in touch.

Please send your application in English including your resume, job references and salary expectations to luebke@k5-gmbh.com